I-CORD FUN
by Marge Parker

I love I-CORDS!! They're quick and easy to make and have so many uses. Besides making oooooles of them on the knitting machine when I'm working on a project, I've got one of those Cord Makers (you can find them around the net at dealers sites and eBay ranging from $10 - $25). One of the best little knitting helper investments I ever made. Just make sure it comes with the two original clip weights.

I keep a variety of colors of cords on hand, using up scraps, etc. You can even make them in stripes as well as solids. Or blend 2 strands of thinner yarns for a nice tweedy look. I string mine onto large hand knitting stitch holders

Here are some great ideas for using I-Cord. This list is not comprehensive, just a few to show you some of the diversity of I-Cord.

- Laces for shoes, a tabard vest, chemise closure
- Drawstrings for bags, hats, purses, sweater tops, etc.
- Stitch it onto a sweater outlining a picture.
- Use around the edge of a blanket; such as weaving in and out of a worm edge. (see picture)
- Hang it on as you knit for dimensional embellishment such as captured in pull-up knitweave (see picture)
- Scrunchies / Hair ties
- Braid it for trims on jackets, around necklines, etc.
- Knit long I-Cord then knit potholder, attaching I-Cord as you go for trim.
- Tie into intricate knots such as a celtic design to embellish.
- Knit-weave your thinner I-Cord for a thick lap robe.

- Coil I-Cord and crochet them for coasters and placemats (see picture)

- Intricate loops and swirls glued to a lampshade OR, if you have knit a lampshade, sew into place for embellishment.
